VOLUME FIFTY TWO

GRAYLING, MICHIGAN, DECEMBER 25, 1930

NUMBER 52

Says WILL ROGERS

BEVERLY HILLS. When your great grandchildren are sitting around some Ponal Institution at recreation time, they will talk of the time away back when their parents and Grandparents used to tell about a certain man that flourished from around 1920 to 1940 and from then on Children will be as they are today.

These continued Grandchildren of ours will say, "Yes we have great Coaches today, we have great Teams. But Dad says every play they know was originally done away back in his childhood by Knute Rockne who founded Notre Dame. This Notre Dame was just another Stubbled College, they cut down the tall grass, dammed up the creek, and made another one of those Indiana Institutions of learning that flourished on practically every quarter section throughout the State. Well from what Granddad says, this Rockne blew in there, and went to school. He was a Swede, or a Norwegian, or a Dane, or some of those Ski Jumping Nations up in there. He didn't know a Football from a footpad. But these Pumpkin seed and playing what they humorously referred to as Football. They let him play with em just for comedy purposes, and for a Swede, or a Norwegian, or a Dane, he turned out to be mighty good. Along about then they started throwing forward passes, so as to have some more fun they got to throwing em to this Swede, or Norwegian, or Dane. Well instead of this Swede, or Norwegian or Dane dodging em, why he got to catching em, and Ski'ening over the line with em. Well then he graduated, for they won't let you stay in one of these Schools but four years, no matter how little you know.

So he found some boys that didn't know much more about the game than he did, so he started in coaching em, the first thing you know he was helping to coach Notre Dame. Well he didn't think he was much of a Coach till he got to seeing some of the others. The head Coach got a job at what he thought was a real high Goal University, and Knute took over the team.

He told em that football was a game of the head, and not of the feet and hands. Well it just wasn't no time till Notre Dame had got out of the weeds, and raised their Scholarship standing a half dozen touchdowns, and you started reading about it. It wasn't just a Buckwheat College, it was right up in the money. It was filling more Stadiums than any of em. He then originated the unique idea of playing a real team every Saturday, instead of about three a season. Then come his climax, as my old Grandparents have told me. He was a great Kidder. He was to play a game on the coast against their best, and their Sporting Writers had boasted their team up till it looked like practical death for Knute to even go on the field with em. Well he started in before they left Chicago, saying that his team didn't have a chance, that they would be beat, as they had lost their only Star. Well on the Coast they fell for it, and when he got to Tucson, Arizona to practice, why he was supposed to have lost another Star, a Mr. Mullins. The Sporting Writers come down to see who he was practicing in Mullins' place and they noticed a No 31. They looked it up and it was a Mr. Hanley. Well when the game started a gent named O'Connor was the starter.

Nobody had ever heard of him, but nobody will ever forget him. Then the news leaked out that during this Arizona practice he had been wearing Hanley's sweater. But No Sporting Writer had ever thought of that. Well he kidded em right up to game time, and even got the odds against his team. Well Gradpap says that when they kicked off Notre Dame got ahold of the ball and never give it back to the other side all day. But the thing that Gradpap laughed about was the way this fellow Rockne just kidded the pants off the whole Pacific coast from the time he left South Bend till he got back. Baram Gradpap says in his balmyest days never made such a Sucker out of folks with his side show as this Knute fellow did singlehanded, outside of what his team did to the others. He won—told em that next year they would beat him that bad. Well every body was surprised to know that they would play em again next year. Nobody ever heard of the Kaiser wanting a return date.

But I have just heard Gradpap sit by the hour and tell some of the Komi cal things this Rockne did in his day. Yes Sir, Gradpap says he is the one that made Notre Dame more famous than Oxford, and Cambridge. This Swede, or Norwegian, or Dane, or Lithuanian, or whatever he is.

NELS P. OLSON PASSED AWAY

WAS ONE OF GRAYLING'S OLDEST CITIZENS

Nels P. Olson passed away at his home here at 2:33 o'clock Monday morning, as a result of a stroke of paralysis received about two years ago. He was nearly 81 years of age. Although he had been confined to his home during most of the time for the past two years, and was speechless, and unable to move about without assistance, still his death came unexpectedly and came to him in his slumbers.

Nels Peter Olson was born in Sjælland, Denmark, May 24th, 1850. When a young man, he came to America and located in Wisconsin. Later he came to Grayling which has been his home for the last fifty years.

He was united in marriage to Miss Marie Fischer March 10th, 1882. Thirteen children were born to this union, five of whom died in infancy.

In his early years in Grayling Mr. Olson worked in the lumber camps and was a stockholder in the Lewiston Lumber Co., the Louis Jensen Lumber Co., of Ewen and the Grayling Lumber Co. of Monroe, La. He was an extensive stockholder and director in the Banner Brewing Co. of Saginaw and a director in the American State Bank of Saginaw.

About seven years ago Mr. Olson was taken with a stroke of paralysis, from which he recovered fairly well. About two years ago he had another that rendered him quite helpless and robbed him of his speech. Through these two years he had been a patient sufferer. He was able to sit up in his home and occasionally was able to get down town.

Mr. Olson was a good citizen. He liked companionship and enjoyed being among his friends and that meant practically everyone he knew. He was generally well liked by both old and young, and he must have sensed with a great deal of pleasure in his late years that he was able to include in his legacy a lot of warm friends.

He is survived by his widow and eight children: Mrs. Anna Scholtz, Mrs. Ruby McNeven, Esbern, George, Ernest and Lester all of Grayling, and Alfred and Waldemar of Detroit, and one brother, John Olson of Saginaw. There are also eight grandchildren. The funeral was held Wednesday afternoon, interment being in Elmwood cemetery.

NURSE CHECKS UP ON T. B. PATIENTS

Mrs. Ethel Langenberg, clinic nurse of the Michigan Tuberculosis Association, was in Crawford county last week to call upon patients diagnosed as active or suspicious cases of tuberculosis at the chest clinic held in Grayling on August 6, 7, and 8.

Her calls, following up the work of the clinic, were made to make certain that the patients understood and were carrying out the instructions given in the clinic, that the family doctor had been consulted, and that care was being taken to prevent infection of children in the family.

As part of the program for which Board of Supervisors voted financial support in 1929, the nursing work was paid for by the $300.00 county subsidy, supplemented by funds secured in the sale of Christmas seals.

NEWS & COMMENTS FROM WASHINGTON

(By Congressman Roy O. Woodruff, Tenth Michigan District.)

In the Interior Department Appropriation Bill which passed the House of Representatives recently, there is an item of $180,625 for the U. S. Indian School at Mount Pleasant. When I visited this school last fall, in a talk with Superintendent L. E. Baumgarten, the subject of a suitable athletic field was one of the matters discussed. There is an enrollment of 375 pupils there, and therefore the students have not had outdoor athletic facilities for that number, and I promised him I would see what could be done with the House Appropriation Committee to include an amount sufficient to at least make a start on building an athletic field.

Upon my return to Washington in November, I conferred with Commissioner C. J. Rhoads of the Indian Service and Hon. Louis C. Cranton of Michigan, Chairman of the subcommittee on Appropriations of the House, handling appropriations for the Indian Service. It was agreed by them that the item for repairs for the school should be increased from $14,000 to $17,000, the increase of $3,000 to be devoted to making a start on the athletic field. This is not a large sum, but by utilizing the student labor, it can be made to go quite a long way towards leveling the ground, laying off playing and contest fields, and erecting such structures as are believed necessary by the Superintendent.

A jury in the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia on December 19 rendered a verdict of guilty in the case of the three defendants accused of embezzling a million and a half dollars belonging to investors in the F. H. Smith Real Estate Investment Company, whose operations reached into almost every state in the Union. This is a victory for the Government, whose prosecution of these frauds was in the capable hands of Nugent-Dodds, Acting Assistant Attorney General of the United States. Mr. Dodds is a resident of Mount Pleasant, and the son of the Hon. Frank H. Dodds.

In the Senate the other day Senator James Couzens of Michigan argued in behalf of the adoption of his amendment to the emergency public buildings appropriation bill, providing that contractors erecting such buildings must employ local labor and pay the highest wages called for in the existing wage scale local agreements of the various trades. Pointing out that there is danger of the large contractors importing workers from the larger centers to work upon local projects, the Senator said, "With reference to the transportation of men from one section to another to do work on Federal contracts, such a contractor is creating a monopoly of the work for that group of men when he takes them from one city to the other and puts them in tents and houses them in such manner. He, by that procedure, is creating a monopoly of work for his particular employees. But, entirely aside from that fact, the second provision of the amendment is that any contract which the Federal Government enters into must contain a provision that the contractor, wherever the work is to be done, must pay the highest prevailing wage for the class of work to be done in that particular community."

Interest on the part of the ex-service men in the present move to pay the face value of adjusted service certificates is quite active. These certificates were issued to the soldiers of the World War upon a basis of length of service in the nature of a paid-up endowment insurance policy, payable in twenty years. At the present time a great many ex-service men find themselves out of work and with payments on their homes or farms to meet, and feel that if the cash represented by their certificates were paid now it could be used to better advantage than at date of maturity.

CHRISTMAS PROGRAM AT MICHELSON MEMORIAL CHURCH

Thrilling excitement among the little folks and pleasing expectancy among the older ones prevailed, when the Sunday school and their guests gathered at Michelson Memorial church Thursday evening of last week for their Christmas program.

The church had been tastefully and effectively decorated with evergreens and two lovely Christmas trees, all prettily lighted in the Christmas colors. Tall red Christmas candles, lighted, in each window added charm to the decorations.

The program of songs and recitations by the Primary department were very well given and the well trained singing by the intermediate classes was inspiring and lovely.

Santa Claus had been waiting somewhat impatiently in the banquet room, wondering why the children did not come. So unusual, you know, for Santa to have to wait instead of the children. Still it gave him a few minutes to rest and to listen to the music overhead. Then there was a rush and the room was filled with excitement and joy as everyone greeted Santa and inspected another beautifully decorated tree. Santa gave each a nice box of candy and the sleepy and happy little ones were ready for home.

It is estimated that there were about 600 grownups and children present to enjoy the Christmas festivities.

A New Year's Message—Scribbling Over the First Page

A great writer has written a book entitled "WHY WE BEHAVE LIKE HUMANS BEINGS." Some novelist ought to write a real story on a kindred subject—"WHY WE BEHAVE LIKE INHUMAN BEINGS." For man does many strange things at certain periods of the year, and sometimes strange then the way he sometimes chooses to usher in the New Year. Like the young child in the Primary Department of the school, when he is handed a new and attractive note-book, he scribbles in careless fashion all over the first page. Of course we expect that of the child, but we do expect something better and finer of the child's father and mother or older sister and brother.

How much better if all people everywhere would learn a lesson from the message of Kathleen Wheeler who has written for us—

"I went to the throne with a quivering soul—

The old year was done.

Dear Father, hast Thou a new leaf for me?

I have spoiled this one.

He took the old leaf, stained and blotted,

And gave me a new one all unspotted,

And into my sad heart smiled,

Do better now, my child."

May none of us scribble over the first page—dated 1931.

APPLICATIONS FOR HOMESTEADS INCREASING

The State Lands Division of the Conservation Department reports that homestead applications have increased three to four times that of normal during the present—so-called economic depression.

The present demand is not from the centers of population alone, but is spread generally over the State. Most of the applications are for homesteads previously abandoned, which generally contain some cleared land and buildings of some sort.

It is not the policy of the Conservation Commission to grant homestead entry unless this body has been reasonably assured that the applicant has a fair chance of proving his homestead. This involves an examination of the lands applied for, to determine their suitability for homestead, and also some consideration of the qualifications of the prospective homesteader.

Michigan law permits homesteading a minimum of forty acres and a maximum of one-hundred sixty. The applicant must furnish proof of settlement within three months after his application has been approved and he has paid the stipulated ten cents per acre. To obtain title to the land the applicant must reside on the homestead for five years.

CROWDS ATTEND CHRISTMAS SERVICES

Sunday was a red-letter day in the history of Michelson Memorial church. For several weeks, the efficient Choir under the able direction of Mrs. C. G. Clippert has been giving much time to the preparation of two splendid Christmas musical programs, and the two very large audiences which attended on Sunday showed a musical appreciation on the part of the people of this community which is very commendable. The Choir was fortunate this year in having the assistance of Mr. Dorr who came from Grass Lake in order to take part in these special services, and the Church is greatly indebted to him. Moreover, there was with the choir once again, Emerson Brown of the U. of M. who is always popular in musical circles with his home town.

Added to this, Miss McAllister, the very loyal music teacher in our schools, stayed over for two days so that she could do her part in making these services a real success.

The morning service was built around the theme—"There is no room in the Inn." Mr. Greenwood speaking appropriately on this subject. In the evening, an interesting play was given dealing with race and religious attitudes and how through the leaving influence of the Gospel of Christ the things which shut Jesus out of the Inn no longer obtain. It was a story dealing with modern life and reflected with much credit on the Christian aspects of modern hospital life. Again, the musical numbers were excellent, and the service proved a fine climax to a real day of inspiration and worship.

After the evening service, the members of the choir and husbands and wives and the musical committee were entertained in the parsonage, a dainty lunch being served by the committee members, and an evening of happy social fellowship spent together.

The Avalanche desires to congratulate all those participating in these splendid services, and are happy over the response of the community to such efforts. Long live the spirit of Christmas!

AGRICULTURAL NOTES

Some cattle feeders feed the lower grades of steers a rather heavy silage ration in the winter and market in the spring when conditions are best for selling steers not highly finished.

Canaries are very sensitive to cold drafts and most of their ailments result from exposure to cold. Hang the cage where there is sunshine but no draft. Keep the room at a fairly even temperature; in cold weather it is well to cover the cage with a cloth at night.

The farmer who buys his alfalfa or red-clover seed can tell whether it is domestic or imported, since the Federal seed act requires the coloring of all imported seed. Ten per cent red coloring (orange red for Argentine alfalfa seed) indicates general unsuitability to conditions in the United States. All other alfalfa and red-clover seed is colored 1 per cent green with the exception of Canadian seed which is colored 1 per cent violet.

Hemlock is attractive for Christmas decorations, but its needles begin to drop off sooner than those of most greens. Plant specialists of the U. S. Department of Agriculture say that hemlock needles will hold much longer if the stems are recut and put in water.

Bees must have stores of high quality during the winter months or they will suffer from dysentery. It is particularly important that the honey adjacent to the cluster be good, as this is the part used in the winter. If the stores are of poor quality, feed each colony about 10 pounds of heavy sugar sirup after brood rearing has ceased. The feeding should be done rapidly.

Buying a good herd bull is an important step in growing better beef calves. In common or native herds, calves sired by purchased bulls weigh on an average 60 pounds a head more when sold as fat yearlings than calves of the same age sired by scrub bulls, and they will sell for 1 to 2 cents a pound more, according to experiments in Arkansas and Oklahoma. The cost of feed for putting 100 pounds gain on the scrub calves was slightly more than the cost for the grade calves.

It requires skill to bleed a steer properly. After stunning the animal stretch the neck out as far as possible and cut through the skin from the breastbone toward the throat, making a cut from 10 to 12 inches long. Insert the knife with the back of the blade against the breastbone and point the tip directly toward the backbone at the top of the shoulders, just under the windpipe, and cut forward toward the head.

Take care not to stick so deep and so far back as to penetrate the chest cavity. Bleeding is more complete if the carcass is "pumped" by grasping the tail and pushing the paunch forward.

The stockyards received thousands of hogs each year that have died in transit or that are more or less crippled owing to improper handling before or during shipment, says the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Let the hogs get rested before loading them on cars. Don't drive them too fast, or load too many on a truck or wagon. Never prod, kick, or excite the animals. Keep them in a comfortable, roomy pen and feed light rations just before shipping. Don't use loading chutes that are too steep. A chute 20 feet long provides a gradual rise to an ordinary farm wagon. The sides of the chute should be protected so the hogs can't fall off. See that the cars are free from sharp pieces of broken timber, nails, mud, or rubbish. Bedding should be provided. Crowding too many hogs in a car may result in some of them dying in transit.

The Farm Budget
A farm budget helps the farmer to choose the most profitable system of farming, to keep a good balance between crops or between crops and livestock, to determine how much seed and other supplies will be needed, to figure out the amount of cash needed, and to determine the net returns that may be expected. Farmers' Bulletin 1564-F, which may be obtained from the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., contains information on making a farm budget.

The Child's Allowance
Child specialists believe that a pocket allowance works best when it is in no way dependent on work done to help in the house, but is given in order to train the child in the use of money. Help in simple tasks should be expected as a matter of course, and an allowance of some sort given also as a matter of course. Do not use the allowance as a means of discipline. Find other ways of teaching obedience or other necessary lessons. Very unusual tasks may be paid for, if the child would otherwise have a continual sense of drudgery connected with everything around the home. For example, dishwashing is something everyone should help with. Everyone makes dishes dirty. Window washing, painting, mowing the lawn, cleaning the cellar, and similar occasional tasks, often a little heavy for a child, may be rewarded by definite pay, just as one might pay an out-long. Insert the knife with the back of the blade against the breastbone and point the tip directly toward the backbone at the top of the shoulders, just under the windpipe, and cut forward toward the head.

Englishman Takes Pride in Cobweb Collection

There is hardly anything, from coin of the realm to cobweb, which does not form the subject of somebody's collection. This is not a mere figure of speech—it is literally true, writes a contributor in the Sheffield (England) Weekly Telegraph.

Take the cobwebs, for example. One knows, of course, that lazy caretakers of old houses make involuntary collections of old cobwebs, but does anyone actually look for and preserve these natural fly catchers? They actually do. There is a man living in a Hampshire village who proudly boasts a large collection of what he calls "spidergraphs," each of which (like human fingerprints) differs from the others.

Gathered carefully, while the sun is warm, the spidergraph is sprayed with shellac to "fix" it and then pressed, ready for the collection between two pieces of glass. Whether his accumulation will ever have any selling value is very doubtful, but there is no accounting for the whims of American millionaires, and it is on the cards that some day one of them will be prepared to exchange a few thousand superfluous dollars for the lightest collection in the world.

Dinner Companion Came to Rescue of Admiral

When Admiral Robert E. Coonts had returned to Annapolis as commandant of midshipmen he was in charge of the cadets on a foreign cruise. The first stop was Queenstown, Ireland. It was at the time of the coronation of King George V, and at an official banquet Coonts had to propose a toast to the new king. He was getting along nicely with his speech when he suddenly realized that he had forgotten what numeral came after the king's name.

"I was floundering along when the thought occurred to me that the wife of the British admiral who sat on my left was an American woman," he relates. "I feigned a case of hiccoughs, and while taking a drink of water I leaned over to her and whispered: 'Madam, I have forgotten which George this is.'"

Valley of Aare

It one would seek nature in a bewitching mood he should visit the valley of Aare. The River Aare had such an enormous hold on the imagination of Wyas he was inspired to write: "Sometimes the Aare seems to me a young river god—rushing impetuously from its cavern and traversing the plains with gay speed, escorted by its troop of noisy brothers. Before long, caught in cupids' bonds, he joins hands with some nubile and lastly stretches himself in the lakes of Brienz and Thun, as if he wanted to taste the joys of calm repose." Coxe also remarked about this part of Switzerland over a century ago: "It is impossible to describe all these majestic and astonishing scenes, for indeed they defy the strongest powers of pen and pencil."

Early Railroad Records

As early as 1845 a record was made in England of 45 miles in 52 minutes. At one time the train was proceeding at the rate of one mile in 48 seconds, or "at the astonishing velocity of 75 miles an hour." In the same year the American Railroad Journal said: "The other day on the London and Birmingham, and on the Great Northwestern railway, a rate of travel at the speed of 65 miles an hour was accomplished. The express trains on these lines run at the rate of nearly 60 miles an hour, stoppage included." During 1846 the Antelope engines on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad made a speed of 60 miles an hour.

Aking for Trouble

The prison chaplain inquired of a newcomer what had brought about his downfall. "Well, you see, sir," began the man, "I married a new woman." The chaplain was sympathetic. "The new woman," he declared, "is the curse of the age. Thinking only of pleasure, she neglects her home and drives her husband into desperate courses. And to what crime did she drive you?"

"Well, you see, sir," said the man, "I married a new woman, and the old one gave me in charge for bigamy."

America's Largest Island

Isle Royale, Michigan's beautiful island in Lake Superior, often is spoken of as "the second largest island in the United States." Long Island, N. Y., being the largest island. But the second largest is Whidby Island, belonging to the state of Washington, according to the American Geographical society. Whidby Island lies across the entrance to Puget sound and is so little known that geographers and atlas makers differ on the spelling of its name.

Back to the Library

A young patron at the West Indianapolis public library was explaining why he had not been taking out books for some time.

"Well, you see," he said, "my brother used to buy lots of magazines and I'd read them. But he went 'groovy' and got married and don't buy 'em any more."

ADD EMPLOYEES TO PAYROLL

With more than 5,700 men added to the Hudson-Exxon employment total, the number of wage earners at the plant today is 9,244. It was stated by William J. McAweeney, president and general manager. This figure compares with 3,500 a month ago. More men are being taken on, week by week, but it is emphasized that all of these are former employees who

Birds' Christmas Tree and a Cardinal Visitor

"OTHER, can't we do something for the birds?" David, all snowy and rosy checked, came dashing into the bedroom where his mother was doing up Christmas gifts. Jack, home from college, was close behind small David.

"David thinks the birds ought to have something special for Christmas, mother. How about fixing the fir tree on the lawn for them?"

"Splendid! We always put colored lights in it and we can tie apples on it and little crusts of suet and those small branches of berries in the garage are really nature's provision for birds."

"And we'll put crusts of bread on the limbs just like packages," David interrupted, eyes dancing.

After the birds were asleep Jack and David trimmed the tree.

"Merry Christmas! Merry Christmas!" the birds were chirping on Christmas morning and the neighbors as well as the family were watching with interest.

"But what's that bright red on the topmost branch?" David pointed excitedly. "Look! Look!"

"Can you beat that!" Jack exclaimed. "That's the cardinal that's been hanging around the last two years. He's come to the birds' Christmas tree!"—Florence Harris Wells.

Santa Will Provide an Up-to-Date Christmas

SANTA CLAUS is a decidedly progressive old chap. He keeps strictly abreast of the times, and in his work employs only modern-day methods. Once he was plodding over the fields in a sleigh no faster than reindeer could gallop. It took him a long time, but he managed to make the rounds.

Then came the automobile. Santa got a big red one and hitched trailers on behind. He could get around faster. He carried bigger loads, got to more homes and made more children happy. When airplanes flew over the North pole Santa got another idea. He believed that planes would be better for his long trips and for skipping from house to house. He is hardly built for an air pilot, but nobody flies faster nor farther than plump old Santa.

He does not fancy spellings, but he is sure that in another year or two he may be able to broadcast Christmas to the children by radio. As soon as carriers are invented to fly through the air, directed and latched by radio energy, old Santa will sit on his mountain of northern ice and broadcast an up-to-date Christmas to all the world.—William L. Gaston.

One Merry Christmas, One Happy New Year

"OTHER, mother, Mrs. Trimble is going to give old Miss Jenny a wonderful Christmas present—the thing she wants most in all the world—do you know what it is?"

"Why, no, Johnnie, I'm afraid I don't. What is it?"

"What do you mean, Johnnie? Miss Jenny isn't married. She can't have any children. I know she has always wanted some, but she wouldn't adopt any, and now she is so old and all—it's ridiculous, Johnnie; don't talk such nonsense."

"That isn't nonsense, mother. Of course, Mrs. Trimble didn't say she was going to give Miss Jenny any children, but she did say she was going to give her a lot of presents and nice things, such as a sweater, and a lot of things she can't afford for herself, so that she will have at least one Merry Christmas and one Happy New Year in her life, and I just figured out that that was the best kind of twins an old woman like her could possibly have."—Harold L. Cook.

CHRISTMAS STUFF

"You say you and Tom have had a quarrel—and just before Christmas?"

"Yes. He thinks he'll get out of giving me a present, but I'll make up with him just about a week before Christmas and get a present twice as expensive as I otherwise would."

NOVEL SMOKING TUBES USED BY INDIANS

A species of combined cigarette and pipe which would elicit the admiration of a modern efficiency engineer, was commonly used by Indians of the Plains region, according to Dr. Melvin R. Gilmore, Curator of Ethnology in the Museum of Anthropology, University of Michigan. The tube, made from a short section of a large, stiff type of prairie grass, was cut off with equal portions on each side of a joint in the grass. One end was used as a mouthpiece, while the other was packed with tobacco which burned without consuming the tube, making either a bowlless pipe or a hard-shell cigarette, as the reader prefers.

When Farms and Forests Join

"There are farmers located on marginal lands in forest regions whose continued residence on these lands might be insured by the reforestation of nearby lands," Secretary of Agriculture Hyde says in a recent article in American Forests and Forest Life. "The work of reforesting the forest would offer employment in the immediate future. The growth of the trees to a size which would allow the harvesting of products would furnish a continuous demand for labor, and through support of industry, a continuous source of public income. Thus the combination of forestry and agriculture would provide both a good living to the farmers and adequate support for the schools, roads, and other undertakings essential to satisfactory social life. Another class of farmers who in addition to their farm lands own woodlots, which contain trees of merchantable size, or trees that will, if protected and cared for, be of merchantable size within a reasonable period of years. Where it is possible through better marketing of products and better forestry practices to create or increase income from these lands, the farmer will have an additional source of income and a market for some of his labor that he cannot devote to farming during the slack season of the year."

BRILLIANT TROPICAL WOODS TESTED BY UNIVERSITY

Eleven tons of South American hardwoods of variegated natural colors, ranging from bright lemon yellow through red, light and chocolate brown, lavender and purple, have been received by the Wood Utilization Laboratory of the School of Forestry and Conservation in the University of Michigan, where they will be tested for various qualities needed in industrial hardwoods, to determine their fitness to supplement the supply of native woods.

The logs in the South American shipment were obtained from the Amazon valley. Some of the magnificent coming from the headwaters region in Peru, and is thought to be the same species used centuries ago by the ancient Incas. In addition to the varied colors and the aromatic nature of some pieces, the wood is remarkable for its weight, the eleven tons total being made up of only one hundred logs.

The value and use of these woods to industry have never been studied, states Professor William Kynock of the School of Forestry and Conservation, who is supervising their examination. They are not expected to take the place of native hardwoods, he points out, but may prove useful supplements while the native supply is being redeveloped in forest stands. Perhaps their natural color will give them a special decorative value in furniture in the modern style.

Twenty-six species of tropical woods from West Africa, the Philippines and South America are being studied at present in the Michigan Wood Utilization Laboratory. Co-operating with the University in obtaining the Amazon valley woods were the Tropical Plant Research Foundation, the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, and an importer.

The Christmas Candle Spelled Welcome Home

FOLLOWING an old family custom, Katherine Blair placed a lighted candle in the window. Originally serving to guide lost travelers on Christmas eve, John Blair knew it had been placed there the last three years with Kenneth in mind—the son who was too busy to come home for Christmas.

The candle's bright light had brought cheer to many, so again Katherine placed one in the window. Perhaps this year it would be Kenneth it would guide home.

A whir of a motor overhead—the night mail was arriving. There might be a letter from Kenneth.

A car stopped before the house as John Blair started for the post office. A man rushed up the steps and through the open door shouting "Merry Christmas Dad and Mother." Between embraces and handshakes he explained: "Found out late I could come home, so I flew down with the mail." The next words filled Katherine's heart with joy—"The old candle sure did spell 'welcome home' to me!" How glad she was the candle was in the accustomed place—Blanche Tanner Dillon.

May Enjoy Christmas in Mansions in the Skies

IT IS not now the fashion to "keep both feet on the ground." In fact it's hard to keep even one foot on the ground; the other one seems always to be up, getting into a car or an airplane, and pretty soon, there you are—both feet entirely, completely, distinctly off the ground!

What this condition may mean to future generations is hard to guess. Perhaps in a year or two people will make a date to celebrate Christmas three thousand feet up in the air.

"Come on up! friends may be urging. 'We're going to shoot a party up over Mt. Washington. Dancing, charades and a fancy dress ball!'"

And we shall be obliged to task in a small plane to the party and be whisked aboard, and worry whether we can get a taxi-plane home again.

And every cockpit will be trimmed in colored balsa and the trade for Christmas trees will be literally going up! Plane trucks to deliver a fine spruce at the service entrance of a flying mansion in the skies.

So don't stick to that old one about both feet on the ground. If you do, you'll find yourself frightfully low down and left behind!—Martha Banning Thomas.

Charm of Christmas

THE chief charm of Christmas is its simplicity. It is a festival that appeals to every one, because every one can understand it. A genuine fellowship pervades our common life—a fellowship whose source is our common share in the gift of the world's greatest life which was given to the whole world.

Christmas Cards

Sir Henry Cole, an English social and educational reformer, invented the first Christmas card. It was six inches long and four inches wide, and depicted in the panels formed by a leafy trellis two acts of charity—clothing the needy and feeding the hungry. Last year more than $100,000,000 worth of Christmas cards were sold in the United States.

Christmas and the Birds

It is said that no peasant in Sweden will sit down with his children to Christmas dinner until he has provided food for the birds. The farmers erect poles in their dooryards to which sheafs of grain are bound, to provide for birds through the season when vegetation is covered with snow and ice.

First Christmas Carols

Christmas carols originated in the eleventh century, being sung between the scenes of the miracle and mystery plays of the period.

Christmas Trees for Porto Rico

New England helps Porto Rico make it a green Christmas. Christmas trees are among the exports to the little island.

The Eve of Epiphany

The Eve of Epiphany, or Twelfth Night (January 6), is to the children of Rome what Christmas is to us.

Would Not Write Card Verses

Tennyson once refused an offer of $1,000 for a short set of verses for Christmas cards.

Good King of Carol Fame

Good King—Wenceslaus, of Carol fame—was a King of Bohemia.

and send reports to the Department office at Lansing within five days after the close of the respective trapping seasons and listing the number and kinds of furs on hand, these furs may be kept as long as desirable without permits or other formalities.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

HAVING adopted an outline of a general disarmament treaty, the preparatory disarmament commission of the League of Nations ended its sessions at Geneva. This draft convention will be the basis for the deliberations of a world conference that probably will meet early in 1932.

Ambassador Hugh Gibson, who represented the United States in a closing statement told his colleagues that the outline treaty "falls far short of our hopes and expectations," failing to include the various methods which Americans regarded as essential to real disarmament. He said, however, he considered himself with the belief that the scheme adopted would permit at least the stabilization of armaments, the setting up of machinery to receive and spread information on armaments, and "to prepare systematically for the work of future conferences."

MR. HOOVER transmitted to the house of representatives a formal request for the immediate appropriation of another $150,000,000 to the federal fund board from its $500,000,000 revolving fund. The money is needed, he said, "in order that important operations of the board, now in prospect, may be carried through promptly," and it was understood this meant further outlays for the stabilization of wheat prices.

OPERATION of Muscle Shoals by a co-operative organization of farmers was asked by the American Farm Bureau federation at its convention in Houston. It also voiced opposition to amendment of the agricultural marketing act at this time.

The federation also recommended stricter regulation of grain and cotton exchanges; that funds to be loaned to farmers in the drought area be made immediately available; that Congress appropriate money to insure immediate carrying out of the authorized development projects, and that the federal treasury have a revolving fund to be used exclusively to stabilize federal land bank bonds.

Two hundred men and women representing thirty-three dry organizations held an annual conference in Washington and asked that Congress provide more men and more money for enforcement of prohibition. A convention of wetts also was held in the National Capital and agreed on a united substitute plan for prohibition.

HERE is one record of achievement to brag about. The forest service reports that fire damage to national forest lands this year was held down to $237,370, a reduction of nearly 95 per cent from last year. This despite the fact that the season has been the driest on record. Forest area burned over amounted to 195,965 acres, only one-fifth of last year's acreage.

PROPERTIES of the Chicago & Alton railroad, which since the time of the Civil war has operated 1,028 miles of track in Illinois and Missouri, were sold at public auction in foreclosure proceedings of the federal court, the sale taking place at Wilmington, Ill., the first station outside of Chicago actually owned by the company. The railway, valued at $100,000,000, was purchased by the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, which owned a majority of the Alton's bonds.

The Alton company had been in receivership for eight years, brought to that condition by financial difficulties that started with the failure to pay dividends on mortgages imposed by the Harriman interests in the '90s. Strikes and bad business in the bituminous coal region helped the company on the downward path.

RUSSIA'S picturesque trial of eight engineers accused of an anti-Soviet conspiracy in which foreign nations and notabilities were declared to be involved ended as expected in the conviction of all the defendants. It could not be otherwise, since all had confessed. Five of them were sentenced to death and three to ten years in prison, and all the Communists applauded. Next day the central executive committee of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics commuted the five death sentences to ten years imprisonment, and two years were taken off the other sentences. The press of London and Paris looked on the whole affair as a put up job.

NO SATISFACTORY explanation has yet been given of the "poison fog" which killed 67 persons in the Meuse valley of Belgium and France. The Belgian authorities tried to belittle the affair, but Queen Elizabeth ruled otherwise and appointed a commission of physicians to make an investigation.

HENRY CLAY now stands, in marble, in the center of a wide plaza in Caracas, the capital of Venezuela, and he is labeled the "Apostle of fraternity between the countries of America." The statue is the present of the United States to Venezuela, given in return for one of Gen. Simon Bolivar, hero of South American independence, which was unveiled in New York in 1921. It was dedicated on Tuesday by James B. Sheffield, former ambassador to Mexico, and received by the high officials of the Venezuelan government.

In his address Mr. Sheffield said: "In speaking to the people of Venezuela, I am trying to interpret to all the republics of South America the friendly attitude of my country and its faith in the complete triumph of free institutions and governments in the western world. We aspire to no leadership in your affairs. We only wish to help you in attaining the highest development of your national consciousness and sovereign rights."

SECRETARY of the Navy Adams in his annual report points out the perils in the administration's policy of reducing navy enlisted personnel to a minimum. He says that during last year there were not enough enlisted men to man fully all types of ships in the navy. To operate the navy with the remaining 70,800 men it will be necessary to decommission a number of vessels.

Appearing before the house naval committee, Mr. Adams asked that Congress approve a $34,000,000 construction program designed to start our country on the way to having such a fleet as is authorized by the London treaty. Chairman Britten of the committee thereupon introduced a bill authorizing the construction of seven new cruisers and submarines and one aircraft carrier, the only vessels on the navy program not now authorized.

THE annual report of the Internal revenue commission shows that ten states with an aggregate population of less than one-half of the total for the country pay more than three-fourths of the federal tax bill. These states, in their order, are: New York, North Carolina, Illinois, Pennsylvania, California, Ohio, Michigan, Massachusetts, Virginia and Missouri. Few of the southern and western states, except those with large industrial cities, paid tax percentages approaching their population percentages.

The total international revenue receipts for the fiscal year were set by the report at $3,040,145,733, of which $2,410,250,230 was paid in income taxes and $629,895,503 in miscellaneous taxes.

SOME AMERICAN OBSERVATIONS

By Jay Taylor

If it appears advisable before ratifying a treaty to make a few reservations to protect the interests of Uncle Sam, certain old fashioned Americans may think that all such reservations should be made by the Senate rather than by some cunning European diplomat.

The naval building program for next year has the cordial endorsement of President Hoover and, of course, he will be criticised by those peace societies who believe that the best way to prevent war is for America to disarm.

Forty years ago Alaska had 1,300 reindeer. Today there are 600,000 giving employment to 13,000 natives. The governor of Alaska thinks that the reindeer may become an important food supply for the United States.

Millions of acres in Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan, and also in other parts of the country especially suited for reforestation, are being utterly neglected because our present state and federal laws make reforestation economically impossible. This is a state and a federal problem of great importance, which some day perhaps will receive the attention it deserves.

For some reason many of our college professors, and most of our university presidents, are easy marks for the international propagandists. The government should find a way to protect these innocent men.

Found Famous Cavern

The Carlsbad cavern was discovered by Jim White, a New Mexico cowboy. He was investigating what appeared to be an immense cloud of smoke. It proved to be a flight of millions of bats. The cave to which they fled him is probably the most extensive in the world and is full of beautiful rock formation.

Disciple of St. Francis Had the Christmas Spirit

"WHAT in the world are you doing, Tommy?" asked Mrs. Rowland, hearing her little son on the cellar stairs, the day before Christmas.

"Oh, sump'n," answered the lad, as he hurried up into the kitchen.

As it was a time of Christmas secrets, Mrs. Rowland refrained from pressing the point and soon forgot it.

When the Christmas tree had been denuded of its fruit next morning, Tommy's older brother, Rupert, ran outdoors excitedly, returning soon, all aglow, and shouting:

"What do you think? You know I scattered those crumbs in the back yard, the way St. Francis of Assisi told folks to do for the birds' Christmas feast? Well, there were about a dozen sparrows there when I peeked around the corner of the house. I called 'Merry Christmas' softly so's not to disturb them, and they chirped back."

"Mine worked, too, I guess," said Tommy. "I went and looked on the cellar stairs first thing this morning, and every bit of cheese was gone that I'd put there for the poor little mice!"—Myrtle Koon Cherryman.

Christmas Still Means Same to Young and Old

UNCLE BILL did not believe in Christmas. He thought it was just a scheme to make the merchants rich and the people poor. However, he loaded himself down with gifts for all the family and took the train to his sister's to spend Christmas with her and her numerous family. He had been so busy making money it was the first holiday he had taken in many years.

Christmas morning when they all gathered around the tree, and he saw the children's joy in that beautiful symbol of the spirit of giving, and in the toys which they received, he realized that in spite of the care-worn crowds of Christmas shoppers Christmas still meant to the children what it had meant to him when he was a boy. There was no commercialism in it.

And when he saw the older people's joy in the presents he had brought them, he resolved that in the future he would become a parents' Santa Claus, and make Christmas as happy for them as it is for children.—Harold L. Cook.

The Christmas Tree

THE Christmas tree is supposed by great numbers of people to have originated in Germany, but the Christmas tree came in the first instance from Egypt, and its origin dates from a period much earlier than the Christian era. The palm tree is known to put forth a branch every month, and a spray of this tree with 12 shoots on it was used in Egypt at the time of the winter solstice as a symbol of the completed year.

The Cheery Logs Knew It Was Christmas Time

THE woodshed was filled with logs. They reached up to the ceiling, and there were so many that some were lying outside the woodshed.

They would be put inside when there was room made for them. They would burn well, too, as they were fine and dry, having been cut the year before.

And at Christmas time it didn't matter how many logs were burned. At other times perhaps one was more economical with the fire, letting it die down earlier in the evening, or not putting on a log when one might have been nice for the evening ahead.

But at Christmas time nothing mattered. Every one burned as many logs as possible.

A splendid, roaring fire was kept up all the time, and if the fire did not burn brightly at once no one cared whether lots of kindling was used.

It was Christmas time and the fire must be kept very bright. The cheery logs knew that.—Mary Graham Bonner.

HERE is something that should interest every reader, in fact every person in the United States. It has been proposed by Postmaster General W. G. Brown, to raise first class postage rates to 2¢ per ounce. The result will be to "kill" the "Sam" in 1931, on the class mail was 78 million dollars while the LOSS on second class mail (magazines and newspapers) was ninety-eight million dollars. Why not let the Saturday Evening Post,
The Chicago Tribune, Wm. R. Hearst deficit their publications are causing instead of we common mortals each

The death of Mrs. Frieda Niles Brainerd of Coldwater last Thursday evening brought sorrow to friends and schoolmates here. Mrs. Brainerd came from Arkansas to make her home with her grandparents, Dr. and Mrs.
Niles, and to attend school here, graduating with the class of 1903.
For about four years she was a compositor in the Avalanche office after which she attended the college of Photography at Effingham, Ill., working at that in Quincy, Mich., for several years. Here she was married to Floyd L. Brainerd and after a few years in Florida they made their home on a farm near Coldwater. Mrs.
Brainerd leaves her mother, Mrs.
Louise B. Niles, of Ann Arbor, and brother, Arthur, of Toledo, Ohio, in sorrow. They, too, were residents of Grayling and have the sympathy of friends here. She was laid to rest at Quincy, Mich., Sunday afternoon.

One of the happiest crowds of boys and girls, and grown-ups too, was the one at the South Side church Christmas exercises Tuesday night.
Their nice little church was filled to capacity. A Christmas program had been splendidly arranged and was nicely carried out by the boys and girls of the Sunday school, all appropriate to Christmas time. After the program candies and other Christmas goodies and toys were distributed to the children. As has been his custom for many years past T.
W. Hanson's Santa Claus provided the candies for the occasion and Mrs.
Sidney Graham's Santa the toys. T.
W. and Mr. Schumann were invited guests and it is needless to say that they enjoyed it quite as much as the Sunday school children and the others.
Tee gave a talk and quite amused the youngsters by reciting the first piece he gave in public when only five years of age. It certainly was a great night for all who were there.
It would inspire anyone to see what splendid religious work is being done for our boys and girls of the South Side. Of course it is a struggle to make ends meet and be able to keep a resident pastor, but they are doing it much to their great credit.
And the boys and girls are getting the benefit of a religious training right in their own little church.

WASHINGTON NOTES AND COMMENTS

The closing of banks has been a subject of frequent report during the past few weeks, the most talked-about instance being the case of the Bank of the United States, in New York.
The damage resulting from a suspension of payment does not lie solely in the fact that badly-needed money is tied up. There follows, as well, a subtle depression, and a haunting suspicion of mind, even among those who lose nothing, which often is not shake off in a lifetime. The paralysis of more than one community can be traced to the psychological effects caused by a bank failure, rather than to money losses. The situation is all the more regrettable when it is known that many a wrecked banking house may have weathered the storm, but for the traditional "run" upon it.
No one is less entitled to be called a good citizen than he who lends his car to idle tales about the home bank, and gives them circulation.

Millions still living can remember when the substitution of a furnace for a half-dozen stoves was considered a long step in advance in the science of house heating. The next progressive effort was along the line of displacing coal by another fuel, and there the matter rests. The factors of the problem are, to do away with fuel deliveries, obviate the work of stoking and ash removal, promote safety, and, last but perhaps most important, to keep the cost nearly to the level of coal firing. No one of the several plans in vogue has all of these advantages. It seems that real progress can be based only on some plan that includes the central plant idea. In general, nothing could be more wasteful than to have each householder employed as a small scale heat maker.

T. E. DOUGLAS PASSES AWAY

T. E. Douglas, owner of the Douglas hotel at Lovells and proprietor of the Nash Garage in Grayling passed away at Mercy Hospital Sunday morning at one o'clock after a long illness. A year ago last fall Mr.
Douglas began failing in health and in June entered Mercy Hospital where he has been a patient since. Everything possible was done for Mr. Douglas. He was a hard fighter and had strong resistance, but not enough to overcome his illness.

Thomas Edgar Douglas was born at Burford, Ontario, Canada Sept. 17, 1861. He came to Michigan in 1883 as bookkeeper for his uncle, Jack Douglas at Alger. He was active in this capacity on the Tibbatawassee river, leaving the employ of his uncle at Saginaw at the end of the season then went to West Branch to engage in a contract job, operating a lumber mill for C. W. Cline. He was united in marriage to Martha Mary Husted of that city on May 19th, 1891. To this union was born two children, Margaret Mildred and Thos. Edgar Jr.

Mr. Douglas came to Grayling in 1893 and was engaged by Mr. R.
Hanson to operate a stove, lath and shingle mill. During a difficult year he was sent by Mr. Hanson to St. Ignace to look after mills there, at the same time being engaged in business of his own at Lovells. Later he left Mr. Hanson's operations and moved his family to Lovells in 1906 where the family has resided since. When the mill industry slackened, Mr.
Douglas founded and developed the now well known North Branch Outing club. He had been a firm friend of Mr. C. W. Nash and became interested in Mr. Nash's new project in the motor car industry and took the agency for his cars in 1918. He established a sales and service station shortly afterward which is now known as the Nash Grayling Sales, in which capacity he remained active until health forced him to refrain from strenuous business.

While suffering for two years, physicians were unable to determine the exact nature of his ailment until May 30th of this year, when it was discovered that a cancer was causing his illness.

Surviving the deceased is his widow, one daughter, Miss Margaret, a teacher in Grayling schools and a son, Edgar Douglas Jr. Also his aged mother, Mrs. Emma C. Douglas of Lovells; a brother Charles H. Douglas of Memphis, Mich., and two grandsons, Thomas Edgar III and James Colleen Douglas.

Those from out of the city in attendance at the funeral included James Husted and son William, Misses Margaret and Cora Husted, West Branch; Miss Gertrude Foley, Pontiac;
Mrs. George Dutko and son Edward,
St. Helen.

The funeral was held Tuesday afternoon with services at the Michelson Memorial church, where the remains had laid in state from Sunday evening. The Masonic burial service was used and there was a large turnout of members to pay their last tribute to their deceased brother. Rev. J.
W. Greenwood preached a very impressive sermon and a quartet composed of Mrs. Roy Milnes, Mrs.
Harold Jarmin and Mr. E. H. Webb and Fred Alexander sang a number of hymns. The flowers were magnificent. The altars were beautiful with them and the casket and all surrounding it was laden with beautiful pieces of all descriptions. A blanket of American beauty roses covered the casket, all tokens of esteem from the hosts of friends of the Douglas family.

Mr. Douglas was one of the best known sportsmen in Northern Michigan. He was a charter member of the St. Helens club, and developed the Russell Lake Hunting club and was an expert hunter and fisherman and enjoyed that kind of recreation.
Thousands of people have registered at the Douglas hotel and most of them knew him well and there was over all these years, a kind of kindred friendship between host and guests that has endured right up to this time. Mrs. Douglas knew how to feed the guests and between the two the Douglas hotel built up an enviable reputation for comfort and hospitality. Mr. Douglas was a good business man and, before illness began to take toll of his life, was an energetic hustler. As the Nash dealer he certainly had a lot of Nash buyers here at home. At one time when Mr. Nash visited Grayling Mr.
Douglas invited out the Nash owners and they staged a parade several blocks long for the pleasure of Mr.
Nash.

In the death of Mr. Douglas Grayling has lost one of its well known business men and one who was always known to be loyal, honest and faithful to its interests. He was a member of Grayling Lodge F. & A.
M. No. 356, O. E. S., Oddfellows and Knights of Pythias.

LUMBERJACKS LOSE TO EAST JORDAN

In a real spirited conflict last Saturday night Grayling Lumberjacks lost to the East Jordan Independents by a score of 34 to 37.

This was the first appearance of an East Jordan team on the local court for a number of years and the close match of the two teams made the game unusually interesting. The Lumberjacks will play a return game at East Jordan some time in the near future.

Preliminary to the game there was a game between two class teams which also was full of pep and sharp rivalry.

Miss Mildred Corwin of Lansing arrived home Sunday for the holiday vacation.

Mrs. and Mrs. Henry Scott of South Branch were callers in Grayling Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Palmer (Ruth Mahon) and son Louis of Bay City were guests of the former's brother, Dewey Palmer, and family Sunday.

Miss Elizabeth Matson arrived home Saturday morning from Battle Creek college, Battle Creek, to spend the holiday vacation visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Efner Matson.

Miss Thiem's classes in Home Economics are busy bees—as was shown by their thoughtfulness, when they filled 50 boxes with candy, peanuts and stuffed dates and sent them to the Board of Trade rooms to be put into the baskets to be sent out to cheer little folks on Christmas.

They financed it too and although it was depleted their treasury it will make them happy to think that they made some one else happy on Christmas. They also made the 700 stockings that were used by Santa Claus in his Community work, taking them home to sew after school hours.

Harry Lurger of Bay City came today to spend Christmas and a few days with friends here.

Hurl Deckrow, who is employed by the Alert Pipe & Supply Co. of Bay City, visited at his home here Sunday.

Esbern Hanson Jr. arrived home Saturday morning from Delafield, Wisconsin, where he attends St. Johns Military academy. He is spending the holiday vacation with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Esbern Hanson.

Mr. Dorr, of Grass Lake, father of Miss Eva Dorr, commercial teacher, was in Grayling over the week end, coming to take part in the Christmas services at Michelson Memorial church and to accompany his daughter home.

The annual Christmas party of the Woman's club was held at the home of Mrs. Holger Schmidt, Monday evening, December 15th. The Christmas charity work was planned and then after a most appropriate program gifts were distributed to each member from a beautifully decorated tree. The ladies enjoyed delicious refreshments.

Mrs. Richard Thompson delightfully entertained the Birthday club at a real Christmas party at her home last Thursday afternoon. There were a large number of ladies and fifteen kiddies present. The kiddies enjoyed the Christmas tree, and each received a toy and sack of candy. Mrs. Axel Larson received the Penny prize. Late in the afternoon Mrs. Thompson assisted by the committee, served a delicious lunch. The Club will meet with Mrs. Russell Vallad, Jan. 8th.

Foreword

LIGHT as the blazing Yule, splendid as the candles in the Tabernacle, holy as the lights that burned through the Sacred mysteries, Christmas is with us once again.

FOR as the Scriptures declare—light cometh in the midst of darkness so in the darkest season do we celebrate our brightest day. Though earth be wrapped in the chill of frost and the sun has lost its power to heat—our hearts are warmed and our spirits glow with the thoughts that Christmas brings.

TO the spirit of the Season do we commend you—and following the custom of the time, convey our best wishes for a Merry Christmas and a happy new year. May the spirit which is upon us bless you—and give you your heart's desire. May the year which is approaching favor you with every happiness it can bestow.

Christmas parties of school classes were much in vogue during the holiday season, the two-by-the-Home Economics Clubs being very pleasant affairs. The Senior club held their party Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. George McCullough with a Christmas tree and lunch. Gifts were exchanged and a jolly evening was spent. Thursday the Junior club had a pot luck dinner and a tree prettily decorated in the Home Economics room.

Photographer Charles Hagle reports a fine photo business for the holidays. Good photography has brought in a lot of patronage and everyone seems to be well pleased. He has considerable work on hand to finish up and will keep his studio open for some time longer, or until all orders have been finished and delivered. There is still time to get photos taken so if there are any families here who desire them, they should make appointments at once. He may be reached by calling the Avalanche office—phone 111.

WASHINGTON CURRENT COMMENT

The Senate has under consideration a resolution to stop immigration for a period of two years. Disregarding those who favor or oppose the measure on academic or philosophical grounds, the discussion seems to be prompted by self-interest, as most discussions are. Those who are in, and have no one to bring in, think that it is time the lid was clapped on. Those who are out, or who have friends who are out, feel that to check immigration would be against public policy, contrary to good morals, and subversive of the public weal.

A dog which spent its life with the guardhouse prisoners at Ft. Myer, Va., is buried with military honors. The bugles have been blown, and the final volley fired, above the body of a less faithful and less deserving object of respect.

The latest slant on the prohibition question is found in the decision of a Federal judge, who holds that the 18th Amendment is unconstitutional, because it was not properly submitted to the people for approval. For the wets there is the satisfaction of knowing that a cloud has been thrown upon this much-debated Amendment, and that the decisions of this particular justice seldom have been found to be in error by courts of review and appeal. For the drys, there is consolation in the thought that no man can be right always, and that the Supreme Court of the United States will have the last say.

A New York man who wandered off into the burning deserts of Death Valley, and was given up for dead, has been found living quietly with a band of Indians. He may give his rescuers no thanks for dragging him back into a world of traffic troubles, unemployment, and Christmas shopping.

Dead or dying. Not a pleasing heading for consideration during the Christmas season, but like the poor of the Scriptures, it is always with us. Ex-president Poincare of France is paralyzed and nearing the verge. The police bring the body of the traditional boy who put out in a small boat, in the teeth of a rising gale, and against the sailor's warning. A craft blows up in Florida waters and kills three. A sea captain commits suicide rather than stand the gaff for his errors. Three bank bandits get theirs from a posse in Illinois. And, finally, a prized Washington shade tree is dead. The gas company did it, it is said, and the courts have the matter in hand.

Things have a bad look in Spain, where strikes, plots, and all sorts of revolutionary movements have been put on foot, with the avowed purpose of overthrowing the monarchy. The House of Hapsburg is unlucky, and Fate may have scheduled King Alfonso to go the way of his fathers. When one recalls how Spain has been stripped of her territorial possessions, and gradually reduced to the place of a fourth-rate power, one is inclined to think that the people may be justified in experimenting with a new boss.

A BOOSTER STORY

Written for the Red Arrow Contest campaign.

"You must hurry, Dear, or we are going to be late. You know we are calling on the Jones' tonight and they don't like to have their visitors straggling in at all hours." "Yes I know, but if you knew how much I detest that Mr. Jones you wouldn't ask me to go. But I suppose we must return that call."

After a brief ride in Clark's shiny new automobile we found them arriving at the home of the Jones' with Mr. Clark's temper showing little or no decrease.

Next we find them seated in the Jones' spacious and well furnished living room. Mr. Jones is the first to speak. "How do you like our new living room furniture? Edna and I are really quite proud of it, and prouder still to know that we have a merchant right here in our own town who can supply us with such beautiful furnishings. And can you imagine! You get a Red Arrow dollar back for every dollar you spend! There is no joke about this, when you once get interested in the Red Arrow game, you learn to appreciate the value of the Red Arrow dollar. Believe me, the Red Arrow idea is all right! The prizes you get are taken from the merchant's regular stock and are not a whole lot of cheaply made up premium stuff. We all know that the merchants behind this campaign carry high grade merchandise.

"Just look at this davenport suite, its really beautiful isn't it. And the inside is just as sturdy as the outside is beautiful. It is made to wear for years upon years—Just to give you an idea of how it is made, Jack, I will try and explain some of the things Mr. Sorenson told me about it. For instance, the springs are tied eight different ways in both the davenport and chairs, and Mr. Sorenson says springs are not always made that way. Many manufacturers tie the springs four ways only and others use a steel construction which is much cheaper to use and cannot be compared with the old reliable eight knot construction. Some difference isn't it? But that isn't all; the wooden framework is securely screwed and put together with dove pins, while cheap furniture is only nailed and soon works loose. Now to give you a little idea as to the exterior of this suite. It is covered with the finest grade of Mohair that can be obtained anywhere. And notice the reversible side of the cushions; beautiful, aren't they? This side is covered with an especially high grade English tapestry and the needlework on it is unequalled in any way. We certainly do get a lot of enjoyment out of our new furniture."

"Another fine thing about it is that we couldn't pay cash for it but they gladly let me open an account with them and gave me Red Arrow money equal to what I paid down. I also get Red Arrow money when I make my monthly payments."

"Yes Jim, that certainly is fine furniture and I wish I could have some like it."

"You can Jack; the Red Arrow club is giving one away just exactly the same as mine to some booster who gets the largest number of Red Arrows. The idea is you should join the Booster club and get all of your friends to trade at Red Arrow stores, and when they make a purchase ask them to tell the merchant they buy from to credit you up with the number of arrows, which of course vary according to the amount of the purchase."

"You bet I'll join Jim, and I'm going to be a real booster too, because I know a lot of people who trade at chain stores and out of town who would gladly trade at Red Arrow stores to help me win that wonderful suite of furniture."

"And by the way, Jack, have you ever attended a Red Arrow Auction? Edna and I have a great time at them—nearly everyone living around here goes. You don't want to miss the next one as you are certain of having a good time and carrying home some really worth while articles. They auction everything you can imagine, Jack; Guns, Chairs, Groceries, Clothing, Batteries and sometimes even credit on other articles from one of the stores. Don't miss the next one."

"Well, Jim, it is getting late and I am going to have a long day tomorrow. Evelyn looks sleepy too. Had a wonderful evening Jim, and you must come over and see us again soon."

On the way home both Mr. and Mrs. Clark were eagerly discussing folks whom they could get to join in the Red Arrow game and pull for them in the Booster club. Mrs. Clark says she has never seen such wonderful bargains as what Mrs. Jones has purchased from Sorenson Brothers and other Red Arrow Stores. She continued by telling Mr. Clark all about the nice things the Jones' had won at the Red Arrow auctions.

"Yes," answered Mr. Clark, "it is funny that we have never before noticed the many advantages offered in dealing at the Red Arrow places and here this campaign has been going on several months right before our eyes."—Adv.

ANOTHER SNAKE STORY

Listen to this one from North Carolina, which is prima facie evidence that the revenue officers have not been active in that quarter recently. When a boy the writer often tried out the fable of a dead snake's tail never losing its muscular action till the sun went down, but this is the first time he ever heard of the decapitated head of a reptile retaining its power to strike and kill with the poison from its fangs.

The item which is culled from the outdoor page of the Detroit Sunday News, comes from Kingston, N. C., and states that three deer hounds were bitten to death by a decapitated rattlesnake which hunters had shot and cut in two. The dogs ran up to investigate the head which had been severed about a foot back of the jaws, and the head struck repeatedly till all three dogs were fanged to such an extent that they died soon afterward. The item also adds that it is "a good plan to burn or bury the heads of all venomous snakes WHICH HAVE BEEN KILLED, and that they may be burned in coal oil or gasoline." The Space Filler would add that the heads may also be burned in a good hardwood or coal fire, or may be cut up into small pieces and fried in melted butter or oleo, or if the snake killer is a vegetarian he may boil them in mazola or other vegetable substitute. If after this treatment the head still shows a desire to strike it might be hermetically sealed in a flask of alcohol—but perhaps that would not do as too many snakes have already appeared in flasks of spirits.

A SCOTCH TREAT

During the rush of getting out an edition of several extra pages last week the "boss" treated the force to some of this new chocolate-yeast concoction—and we all wondered at this unlooked-for pre-Christmas liberality—that is, until one of the force happened to read the testimonial on the wrapper which stated that a business executive had treated his office help to this concoction and it caused them to work much harder—and so the cat was out of the bag. Well, "it's an ill wind that blows no one some good."

WHEN WE PUT OUR SHIRTS ON OVER OUR HEADS

Geo. E. English in the Bad Axe Tribune says:

"We often wonder how many of you 'old-timers' around Bad Axe can recall when we put our shirts on over our head, when anybody could hitch up a horse, when there were no such things as wrist watches and a hired girl was lucky to get $2.50 a week. Or how many remember when boys collected cigarette pictures, when everybody had tonsils and kept 'em, when nobody had appendicitis and most everybody kept the Sabbath. Surely there must be a lot of folks around here who can remember when they carried a lantern on the dashboard of the spring wagon and drove through mud, loose rock or dirt most of the time; when they slept on a straw tick and took a bath in the washtub in the kitchen only on Saturday night, or when women wore Mother Hubbards, when a brick covered with carpet served as a door-stop and when congress gaiters were the most stylish shoes. But if you can remember any or all of these it isn't a sign that you are getting old. It's just a sign of good memory."

The Space Filler confesses to a good memory, and also would like to add that many of those who "put their shirt on over their head, slept on straw ticks and took a bath in the washtub only on Saturday night," were cleaner both inside and out, and slept with a clearer conscience than many of those who today lie on the latest "sleep-easy" mattresses and perform their ablutions daily in tile baths.

WHERE GAME PROTECTION FUND COMES FROM

The Game Protection Fund is not all "hunters money" or "fishermen money" or all of any special interest, according to percentage charts recently compiled by the Conservation Department.

These charts, based on the receipts of the past two years, show that deer license fees and small game hunting and trapping licenses make up sixty per cent of this fund; fishing licenses both game and commercial, by far the majority of which is non-resident angler's license fees, add thirty-one per cent; the balance is composed of miscellaneous revenue such as muskrat licenses, the sale of confiscated property, officers' fees derived from court convictions, etc.

Of the total of the Game Protection Fund, eighty-seven per cent is derived from recreational sources and thirteen per cent from commercial sources. Seventy-five per cent from Michigan residents and twenty-five per cent from non-residents.
